the collapse of their power in China proved final and complete, it is by no means improbable that we should have witnessed a revived Manchurian monarchy, similar to that which existed in the first half of the seventeenth century, completely independent of China.

A large member of able Chinese loyalists would have taken office under such a monarchy, and they would have been followed many Chinese of all classes who were dissatisfied with conditions under the republic. Had such a monarchy been established it is not improbable that before long it would have neen joined by Jehol and the rest of Inner Mongolia. (8)

PP.

This possibility of retiring to Manchuria was not overlooked by the Manchu court when the revolution in China began to look dangerous. On the contrary it was seriously discussed, and many imperialists both in China and in Munchuria urged that this would be the wisest course to pursue. What finally decided the terms secured for them by Yu'an Shin-k'ai in the Articles of Favourable Treatment. .... Two of the princes were amazed and indignant at what they regarded as the snameful pusillenimity of the regent and their brother-nobles. .... When they perceived that they were outvoted, that the promises and veited threats of Yuan Shih-k'ai were breaking down all opposition, that the regent and empress-dowage: were succumbing to the pressure of a stronger will than theirs, and that the imperial cause was indeed lost, these two princes took their departure from the capital and went into exile, vowing that if they ever returned it would only be when the Dragon flag flew once more over the gates of Peking, or in their coffins. One of these men was P'u-wel, prince Kung;

the other was bhan Ch'i, prince bu. The former has lived for many years in the Japanese leased-territory of Port Arthur, thinking and greating of little else but the possiblity of the revival of the glaries of his House.
Prince by returned to Peking in April, 1922 - in his coffi

Note (8) "In 1911, China became a Republic and at the same time, Mongolia declared its independence and stated that whenever China restored the monarchy under a Manchu emperor Mongolia would voluntarily rejoin China" (J.n. Loage in the China Illustrated Review, Tientsin)

2. 257.

A conflict between Japan and the Chinese republic - or those who posed as representatives of the republic in manchuria - would, thought these monarchists, give them the opportunity they assired. To those who might reproach then with treachery to Onina in aliying themselves with a foreign power, they would be able to reply that China had already declared the Manchus to be aliens (1 tsu) and had driven them from the throne on that ground. An alien race or an alien family owed no allegiance to China. ....

Kwoving this to be so, I nave found it difficult to explain the statement in the Lytton Report that the manchurian independence movement "had never been heard of in Manchuria before septemeber, 1951," (11) except on the assumption that the evidence of the existence of such a movement in the interests of the old monarchy had not been laid before Lord Lytton and his colleagues.

P. 443 The devastation and violation of the imperial tombs (the Tune Line, to the east of Peking) took place between the Sra and the 11th July, 1928. ----

2. 444-445 Everything case could be forgiven-insults, rigicule, threats of death, confiscation of property, the tearing up of agreements -- but not this appalling act of savagery and gacrilege. From this time on there was a change in the experor's attitude to Omna -- or rather towards those van vere responsible for its hisgoverment. by neture he is generous and forgiving and I had never heard his utter a vord of angry complaint cominst the just violent of his endates. But this tas something he could never overlook. Up to that the he had taken no part in the inaggendence movement that he knew was gatherine momentum in Manchuria, and the possibility of his being invited to return to the Menchurian home of his encestors was a subject to which he had hardly given a serious thought. He had never coased to hope that China vould recover her senity and that all vould be well. But now that hope was dead. when I next visited him the change was very marked. So marked was it that it seemed to me as though he had been in communion with the spirits of his outraged encestors one that they had urged him to turn away iron Chine that had disgraced herself and then and to fix his gaze on the land in which they had laid the strong foundations of their capire three hundred yours ago.

on October 1st, 1980, on benefit of the British Governleft I conducted the remaition of weinlikel. Since 1898 that Territory, with a population of nearly 200,000 and an area about couple the size of the Isla of thent, had been governed by a British commissioner directly responsible to the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

It was now handed back to China, and the people of the Territory passed under the jurisdiction of the Chinese republic for the first time, for when it was "leased" to Great Britain, China was still a monarchy.

Installment after the renaltion I returned to England, not knowing then, if ever, I should return to the country in which I had spent over thirty yours. Rether unexpected. I returned almost exactly one year later, partly on business connected with the "Boxer" inclimity as a member of the British group partleipating in the bichnial pacific Conference, which that year was held in China.

The famous murden incident of september 18th, 1931, took blace a few adja between my thip resched Japan on my outward journey. I tent on so thing, and almost immediately after my trival at thengasi I travelled by train to mentain, which I reached on October 7th. The emperor expected me, and I was not at the station by one of his suite. There was a very prevalent remound in Tientein that he had already left for Manchuria. That, of course, I knew to be incorrect. I spent the next two days in his company, and was given information which enabled me to foresee what was to happen in the near future. The information which he himself gave he was correborated by Chen, Heico-hau.

DEF. LOC. 1177

That hight we were both the emperor's guests at dinner,
the only others present being Chen, Chui, Chen pag-Shon and Chui Leong. As may be readily underswood, there was only one topic of conversation.
